Did you Know?

June 22, 2026 marked the 27th anniversary of Olmstead, the landmark Supreme Court decision affirming the right of people with disabilities to live, work, and receive supports in their communities. Just days earlier, on June 18, 2026 the U.S. Department of Justice issued a memo that, coupled with the federal administration's ongoing statements regarding home- and community-based services, has compounded providers' concerns about the future of community-based disability services. In Massachusetts, these services remain essential to opportunity, independence, and full participation in community life for the thousands of Commonwealth residents who rely on them.

Together, we can continue advancing Olmstead's promise through strong community-based supports.
